Mark J. McAndrew brings a combination of decades of experience, traditional values and fresh solutions to your legal needs. Mark combines legal and management skills that are a result of his private practice and in-house, general counsel experiences. Mark concentrates his practice in commercial transactions, employment law and homeowner's association matters. While Mark emphasizes customized agreements, risk awareness and eliminating legal issues before they arise, he has, throughout his career, litigated cases in state and federal trial and appellate courts, across the country.

Mark is a frequent lecturer at continuing legal education seminars and in-house programs for clients.

Employment Law

Whether the issues are related to a contract, transaction, policies or an investigation, knowledge of employment law's ever-changing environment is essential to any successful business. Clear and equitable application of laws and policies creates an environment that fosters success in an organization through motivated employees. Clients include individuals and corporations, yielding a full understanding of issues from all angles.

Litigation

Every effort must be made to avoid costly and time-consuming litigation. This is done by proper preparation of documents, training, auditing company procedures and recognizing, confronting and resolving issues before the parties resort to litigation. However, when litigation is necessary, Mark has successfully litigated civil suits and appeals. Representative lawsuits include environmental, commercial, and industrial accident issues. He also represents companies and individuals in employment matters and, as such, he understands complex issues from all perspectives.

Commercial and Transactional

Mark is blessed to work with experienced business executives, in successful companies, across many industries. He has managed an in-house legal department and his current law firm. This experience brings a unique understanding of the issues placed on business leaders, what they need from their counsel and a sense of partnership in the clients' successes. Whether it be contracts, transactions, regulatory compliance or investigations, Mark brings a balance of technical competence and practicality to the team that allows him to present and prioritize viable options to business leaders.

Homeowners' Associations

Mark's in-house commercial and litigation experience combine to serve the needs of associations, whether it be working with a board; drafting clear, customized and enforceable documents or efficiently resolving disputes that arise.

Community

Mark and his wife, Heidi, raised two sons in DuPage County and are life-long residents. Mark has and continues to serve his church and the community in a variety of ways. Whether as a coach, an elder in his church or as a board member for not-for-profits that benefit children around the world, Mark as well as other members of Rathje Woodward LLC continue to honor and serve their community, at home and abroad.
